Important Reminder: Branch Meeting CPD Points

The Society has implemented a new policy on branch meeting CPD points. Effective 01st January 2011, only members who have paid their subscription fees will receive CPD certificates for Society branch meeting attendance. CPD certificates will not be issued retroactively; you must be a member in good standing on the date of the branch meeting to receive points. The Society branch meetings are still open to both members and non-members.

Message from the President

The Society has elected an interim board as a mechanism to deal with the requirements of the new Companies Act. The interim board will be working with the Executive Committee on a new 'Memorandum of Association' – the language of the Act, essentially a constitution – that brings us in to line with the new Act, as well as implements the new strategy decisions from the Executive Committee. I am delighted to welcome Dr Eric Hefer (currently on the Executive Committee) and Dr Tim Tucker (who has been an advisor regarding our new strategy), who, with me, will be taking this process forward, till full elections of a new board this November. Please feel free to contact me or Fatima Shaik if you have any questions about this process.

Society Funding Update

The Southern African HIV Clinicians Society is very grateful to Atlantic Philanthropies who will fund the programmatic work of the Society for a second term commencing March 2011. The funds will be used to strengthen the capacity of HIV healthcare workers to provide HIV prevention, care, treatment and services through a co-ordinated scientific response to the HIV/AIDS epidemic.

The funds received will allow the Society to consolidate the various programmatic areas of operation as well as allow the Society to upgrade its technology and expand its expertise to ultimately ensure that HIV patients receive the best possible care and treatment.

Key Challenges, Priorities and Recommendations to Strengthen Rural Health Care: Findings from the Rural Health Advocacy Project

The Rural Health Advocacy Project (RHAP) is a not-for-profit, public-interest advocacy organisation that is a partnership initiative between the Rural Doctors Association of Southern Africa (RuDASA), the Wits Centre for Rural Health (WCRH) and Section27. RHAP advocates for improved access to high quality, comprehensive health care services in rural areas with the aim of improving the health of the South African population. Last year, the RHAP conducted a study with a variety of rural health care experts from different backgrounds to identify the key challenges and priorities for rural health care. The study informed the development of a position paper, Rural Health: Key to a Healthy Nation, which presents an analysis of the findings and recommends a number of policy actions.¹ RHAP also released a companion, advocacy framework, which sets the organisation's policy agenda for the next five years.

The section below includes highlights and excerpts from the position paper and advocacy framework; the documents are available in full online at www.rhap.org.za.

Study methodology and results

In April 2010, RHAP initiated a consultative process with a panel of 53 rural health care experts from different backgrounds using the Delphi Methodology², a technique that facilitates consensus and idea generation among participants who are not in the same physical location.

The 53 study participants included senior representatives from provincial Departments of Health, hospital managers, clinical managers, family physicians, medical officers, nursing professionals, rehabilitation professionals, medical specialists (e.g. an obstetrician and paediatrician), policy experts and activists in the field of human rights and health. In a process of 3 questionnaire rounds, participants were asked:

- 1) to rate a set of 153 statements of challenges and priorities³,
- 2) to introduce new challenges and priorities where applicable, and
- 3) to rank the key challenges and priorities down to the top 5 in both categories.

This process was conducted with the participants via email. Response rates throughout the three rounds were good, with 83% in the first round (n=44) to 64% in the final round (n=34).

The top five identified challenges in rural health care are listed in Table 1. The challenges are discussed below in three general categories: human resources for health, governance and leadership and finance.

1	Governance & Leadership	People are appointed to senior posts in hospitals, district offices and provincial departments of health without requisite knowledge, skills and experiences.
2	HR for Health	Comprehensive and equitable rural health care is hampered by the maldistribution of health workers between urban and rural; private and public sectors, and at different levels (tertiary hospital to PHC clinic).
3	HR for Health	Provincial human resource departments are often weak, causing a variety of problems such as a lack of a sense of urgency in dealing with important matters, such as recruitment of professionals, including advertisements of posts.

² For more information: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Delphi_method

³ The challenges and priorities list was informed by the WHO building blocks for health care, interviews with four key informants and a literature review

4	Finance	Budget cuts and frozen medical positions take place across the board and do not take into account the often fragile positions of already under-resourced rural hospitals.
5	Governance & Leadership	There is a lack of work ethic and value systems among health care workers and management that hamper a motivating climate in health facilities.

Human resources for health: Challenges 2 and 3 fall under human resources for health (HR4H). South Africa's HR4H challenges are well documented and are particularly apparent in rural settings, where there are significantly fewer health care workers per population compared to urban settings. While there are a number of reasons for an HRH crisis in South Africa, the authors note the negative impact of two government policies: the closing of nursing colleges and the occupation specific dispensation (OSD). Though unintended, these two policies had direct consequences on the number of health care workers in rural areas. The closing of local nursing colleges made it harder to recruit and retain people in rural areas, and the OSD specifically incentivises specialisation, the training of which takes place mostly in urban areas.

Governance and leadership: Challenges 1 and 5 are specifically related to governance and leadership. The authors note that the two challenges identified have a direct bearing on human resources and their recruitment and retention. The authors also refer to findings published in the Lancet in 2009, which found a significant number of avoidable and modifiable factors in the high levels of maternal and child mortality ratios at health system level.⁴ The Lancet article attributed 22% of child deaths to administrator action, such as lack of senior doctors and nurses, and found 53% were related to health care provider action, such as poor assessment and management in hospitals.

Health financing: Participants identified health financing, as it relates to the underfunding and rationalisation of health spending, as the 4th key issue. The authors cite the perennial problem of frozen posts, often the result of provincial debt and/or poor planning, and also note that provincial-wide funding cuts have a vastly different impact on fragile understaffed rural health facilities versus usually much better staffed urban facilities.

Priorities

From the study findings, the authors identified the top priorities for rural health care:

- 1) There is a need to focus on how to recruit, retain and support senior health care professionals in rural hospitals for the long term.
- 2) Hospital/Medical Managers should be employed based on the appropriate skills and experience.
- 3) There is a need for the development and implementation of a national Human Resource Plan that is relevant to the rural health care context.
- 4) Equitable funding formulae need to be designed for the financing of hospitals based on the local burden of disease, staffing needs, the costing of services, and equity principles.
- 5) District Managers should be employed based on the appropriate skills and experience.

In order to achieve these priorities, the authors specifically call for the following:

- The development and adoption of "rural proofing guidelines", which would help ensure that all government health policies, programmes and initiatives are appropriate and suitable for the rural health context.
- An equitable funding formulae for the financing of hospitals based on the local burden of disease, staffing needs, the costing of services and equity principles.
- A pro-rural and pro-equity Human Resources for Health plan.
- The adoption of HR as a key performance area for hospital managers, district managers and provincial senior managers.

- The incorporation of community care givers into the formal health system, including home-based caregivers.
- The use of leadership indicators in the selection criteria for facility, district and provincial leaders.
- Finalisation and adoption of a rural health strategy.
- The involvement of citizens and rural health care workers in the design, implementation and monitoring of health care delivery.

To help achieve the above, RHAP has developed an advocacy framework to guide its activities over the next five years. For more information on RHAP and how you can become involved, contact:

AFRICAN JOURNAL OF LABORATORY MEDICINE

The African Society for Laboratory Medicine (ASLM), recently established with support from WHO, the African Union, CDC, PEPFAR, World Bank, the Clinton Foundation, UNAIDS and others, is launching a new international peer-reviewed journal, the African Journal of Laboratory Medicine. ASLM's goal is to advance the profession of laboratory medicine in Africa, and the journal will take a broad perspective on the role of laboratory and laboratorians in clinical care and public health efforts. It will provide much-needed communication in the profession of laboratory medicine, and be a forum for laboratories to communicate with other biomedical scientists and clinicians, the medical community, public health officials, and policy makers.

The journal will initially be published quarterly, and will be available with open access online. Articles about the translation of laboratory knowledge, practices, and technologies into clinical care, the interface of laboratory with medical science, laboratory-based epidemiology, and laboratory investigations and evidence-based effectiveness in real world settings are of particular interest. Any articles may be submitted in English or French.

For more information on this inaugural issue or to submit manuscripts, please visit www.afslm.org.

QUACKDOWN!

The Treatment Action Campaign, Community Media Trust and other partners recently launched a new website to expose quackery and help patients make informed choices about health care. It is called Quackdown!:

As far as possible, attorneys will attempt to resolve the problems immediately. Where this is not possible, the client will become a client of the relevant firm, and the attorney will finalise the matter on a pro bono basis.
